AUDREY SPIVACK NAMED ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR OF THE OFFICE OF MEDIA RELATIONS

Washington, DC – Audrey Spivack has been named Associate Director of the FCC's Office of Media Relations, (OMR) and will be responsible for supervising and implementing day-to-day operations of OMR, and the public release of FCC notices and releases.

Ms. Spivack has worked at the FCC since 1976. Most recently, she has served as Public Affairs Specialist in OMR and its predecessor, the Office of Public Affairs (OPA). From 1988 to 1994 she served as Assistant Chief of the News Media Division of OPA. Before joining the FCC, Ms. Spivack worked at the Federal Trade Commission.

She received a B.S. in Business Administration from George Mason University, Fairfax, Va.

David Fiske, Director of OMR said, "Audrey Spivack's promotion to the Associate Director position in OMR is a recognition of the major role she has played, as a long-time FCC veteran in designing and carrying out FCC policies for the release of documents and information to the media and to the public at large."
